

HISTORY

Originally called Wolf Hollow Country Club, The Water Gap Country Club & Resort was built in the heart of the Poconos just two hours from Philadelphia and one hour from New York City.

Surrounded by 160 acres of beautiful woodlands, Wolf Hollow is now the Pocono's premier resort and golf destination.

GOLF IN THE POCONO MOUNTAINS

In 1922 the course was completed by Robert White, one of the founders of the PGA and also the first President of the Association.

From 1926 to 1928 Wolf Hollow hosted a nationally respected tournament known as the Eastern Open. It was during this time that some of golf's greatest legends played on the course, including Gene Sarazen, Leo Diesel and Walter Hagen.

Today, the 18-hole Championship layout offers a rare challenge to all golfers, young and old. The course takes advantage of the natural features of the Poconos unique terrain and provides a stunning backdrop for golfers and spectators alike. The golf course and hotel provide the perfect weekend getaway and the clubhouse offers versatile spaces, great for hosting any event, including the area's best weddings and bridal showers.
